

Houston Project Management/Project Controls Firm Completes Intensive 2-Week Project Controls Training for Major Korean E&C Company and Launches New Customizable Training Solution

Houston, TX (January 4, 2012) - Integrated Consulting (<http://www.icpcs.com>), announced the completion of an intensive, two week project controls training course for a major Korean E&C Firm. This training finalized the end of a year-long project controls implementation. The training was attended by 17 Korean delegates at a luxury Houston hotel, which encompassed all aspects of project controls methodologies, including work breakdown structures, risk management, earned value management, planning and scheduling. Each training class was conducted by an industry thought leader and assisted by subject matter experts (to provide real project experiences) and consisted of lectures, group exercises, discussions and quizzes. To tailor the training to the client's needs, Integrated Consulting incorporated several group exercises for each topic, using project specific information and experiences, to enhance and illustrate the lecture material. By keeping lecture time to less than 30% of the total training and engaging in several group and individual exercises, a lively exchange of thoughts and discussions on the subject material was encouraged and aided comprehension of the concepts. At the end of the two-week course, each delegate received a certificate of completion, study materials and tools for implementation.

"This training was intense but yet worthwhile that I have taken. The use of my specific project's data and real project experiences made my understanding of the class lessons much stronger," states a delegate.

This training solution is customer centric and can be tailored to meet each individual client's and/or corporate needs, specific project gaps, budgets and time constraints. The client has the freedom to choose specific topics, location and durations for the training. Each training session is designed to inject real project experiences and lessons learned not just philosophical theories. . This training solution was the culmination of multiple client requests, both domestic and international, for individualized, hands-on real experience training, by project professionals with real life experience. Users of this training range from large owner/operators to small engineering firms and have been conducted around the globe, including Malaysia, Asia, Europe, Mexico, Latin America and Canada.
